About UTA-NSBE

The National Society of Black Engineers (NSBE) is a nationally recognized, non-profit, student-run organization that is dedicated to increasing the number of minorities in the field of engineering through the professional development of undergraduates, graduates, and young professionals. NSBE at the University of Texas at Arlington has created extensive networking opportunities, prepared individuals to make contributions in their engineering careers, and provided outreach to young children in the community.

We host a variety of events each school year such as career fairs, community events, workshops, company tours, and social events. In addition, our members also annually attend a regional and national NSBE Conference. Some of our events are as follows:

National Conference: This is a UTA-NSBE subsidized event that our members are able to attend. This year's conference is located in Anaheim, CA. It offers technical seminars, leadership training, a career fair, and networking events. UTA-NSBE is always one of the largest chapters present, and many members obtain internships/co-ops and establish nationwide networks.

A Walk for Education: This is an NSBE community outreach event in which members walk door to door raising awareness about engineering with underprivileged children and parents in nearby neighborhoods. The children are invited to the neighborhood's community center in which lunch is provided and engineering activities are performed.

Regional Conference: This is a Regional event in which UTA-NSBE sponsors members to attend. This year it is virtual, it offers access to career and leadership development workshops, a career fair, networking socials, and technical seminars.

On behalf of the National Society of Black Engineers - University of Texas at Arlington Chapter, we are writing to seek your partnership in supporting the programs that we will host throughout the 2021-2022 collegiate academic year. Your sponsorship will help to sustain the events listed above, as well as other events such as the Regional Leadership Conference, general member meetings, social events for member retention, and many more programs that are all in service of our mission “To increase the number of culturally responsible black engineers who excel academically, succeed professionally and positively impact the community.”

We have prepared this partnership packet to familiarize your company with the University of Texas at Arlington National Society of Black Engineers programs. We are excited for the coming school year and all of the opportunities our members will have. In an effort to increase these opportunities we offer a variety of ways to contribute through our sponsorship packages listed below:
